Baby Ten or Eleven Months Old is Taken From Here on C. H. & D.
Train.

WOMAN FINDS IT ON TRACK

Hands Infant Over to Brakeman or Hobo—Mrs. Elsie Richter Relates Story.

Mrs. Elsie Richter, wife of Willie Richter, owner of a grocery store in West Third street, related a story that is full of mystery this morning to Policeman Wolter, and one that has caused the residents in the neighborhood of the C. H. & D. railway and Arthur street to wonder in horror at the possibility of such a thing.

Mrs. Richter states that yesterday shortly after one o'clock as she was passing over the railroad at Arthur street she saw a baby sitting on the track and that she picked it up. As she did so a man, supposed to have either been a brakeman or a hobo, came towards her and stated that he would take the child. She gave the baby to him and he caught a freight train that was passing. The mystery is who did the child belong to and what was the reason for wanting it out of the way.

"The baby was probably ten or eleven months old" said Mrs. Richter this morning, "and had red hair and blue eyes. The child was in the center of the main track and as I picked it up it called me mama. The child was poorly dressed and was almost blue with the cold. It had no shoes or stockings and wore a very thin dress. A man dressed in blue overalls and wearing a stiff hat came running towards me and said 'let me have the child. I will put an advertisement in the paper and if no one wants it I will keep it.'

"I handed the baby over to the man and just then a train came along and he jumped on taking the child with him. I was on my way back to the store from dinner and when I first saw the child my first thought was to take it back home out of the cold and then look for its parents. When the man spoke to me I thought it must belong to him and handed it over."

One of the most peculiar features of the case is that the police have not yet been notified of a missing baby and for this reason the supposition is that the child was left there purposely. The train that the child was taken from the city on left here about two o'clock and was the east bound local. The same crew was due back here today on the west bound local. The train was expected in here about four o'clock and the crew will be questioned by the police in an effort to discover something concerning the mystery.

According to Mrs. Richter the child was sitting directly in the center of the main track just west of the Arthur street crossing. So far as can be earned she is the only one here that saw the baby. Walter Hoard, watchman at the Arthur street crossing did not see anything of a baby and knew nothing of the occurrence until told this morning by Mrs. Richter. He was in the shanty and as he remembers only one person besides Mrs. Richter passed the crossing at the hour the child was supposed to have been left there.

C. H. & D. officials at the freight office know nothing of the mystery and the police so far have failed to find a single clue leading to the identity of the child or the person leaving it on the track. Several theories have been advanced and all seem plausible. One was that the child was left there by its mother in order

HEADQUARTERS TO BE OPENED

A meeting of the Republican precinct committeemen and a few party workers will be held in the Republican headquarters in the Green office building in East Second street this evening. The meeting will be the initiation of the new headquarters for the city campaign. Arrangements were made for electric lights to be installed this afternoon in readiness for the meeting tonight.

The purpose of the meeting will be to select the date and fix the places for the ward meetings to name delegates to the city convention. The date for the convention has not been fixed, but it will be in the near future by the city committee.

INJURED MAN BROUGHT HOME.

Webb Bradley, the young man of Fairland who fell out of a tree near Rays Crossing while after a squirrel which he had shot, suffering a crushed spine, was brought home from St. Vincent hospital in Indianapolis Sunday evening, where he had been taken Saturday morning. The physicians gave up all hope of saving his life, as the crushed spine is almost sure to cause his death.

FORMER PROFESSIONAL PITCHER ONE OF THE METHODIST MINISTERS HERE

Rev. E. O. Haley of Clay City, Who Was Conference visitor, Pitched For Minneapolis 8 Years.

STORIES OF THE CONFERENCE

Not many people were aware of the fact, but Rushville was host during the Methodist conference which closed here yesterday noon to a minister who was formerly a professional baseball pitcher in the American association and twirled successfully eight years for the Minneapolis club. That minister's name is the Rev. E. O. Haley, pastor of the church at Paoli, Indiana, to which he was re-assigned yesterday. For eight years, after breaking into professional baseball, he pitched successfully for Minneapolis and helped them win the pennant once.

However fate twisted his career around in another direction. He was spending the winter in Evansville, when he met a girl who was responsible for the twist. She was a prominent worker in the Central Avenue church in Evansville and was active in the Epworth League.

The influence of the young woman on him had effect in a few months. He was converted at a Methodist revival and soon prepared to enter the Methodist ministry. It is hardly necessary to say that the chapter closed with the marriage of the young woman and the Rev. Mr. Haley.

He still pitches a few ball games to keep in trim. He is the pitcher for

COMMITTEES COMPLIMENTED

Value to Rushville of the Gathering
of Such a Body Here is Being Pointed Out.

In addition to the resolutions that were passed and the words of praise and compliment which were passed at the various sessions of the Indiana conference of the Methodist church, the comments of the many ministers which were passed as one man to another bear witness to the fact that Rushville was eminently successful in the project of entertaining more than three hundred ministers and lay guests the last week.

There was no disappointment among the ministers because their wives were not entertained. It was generally understood that Rushville could not, because of its size, take care of the wives of the ministers as is generally done at the conferences.

The visiting ministers were delighted with the cordiality and hospitality they found in Rushville homes and were free to express their opinions of the entertainment which Rushville afforded. Many comments made on the conference here have been repeated since the close of the annual meeting yesterday at noon.

Much of the honor for the triumph of the undertaking falls to the Rev. W. H. Wylie, the retiring pastor of the St. Paul M. E. church, who was largely responsible in bringing the conference here, and on whom, as pastor of the entertaining church, the responsibility fell.

"In the conference just held," said the Rev. Mr. Wylie in an interview today, "the success and enjoyment of it by the visiting ministers was entirely due to the cordial treatment of Rushville people, regardless of affiliations. The ministers without an exception were delighted with the city and its homes. It was the common expression among them: 'the place where I stay is the best in the city.'"

"A number of the visitors declared the entertainment was the best ever received at any conference. The meals served by the women of the Christian church, at the hotels and boarding houses were declared to be the best served within the remembrance of most of the visitors. I want to take this opportunity to thank the people of Rushville for the fine co-operation and the spirit in which it was done. It was gladly given and most delightfully received."

Dr. V. W. Tevis, superintendent of the district, had a big part in arranging for the conference, of course, as this is his home city and the entertaining church is in his district. He and the committee on entertainment did valiant service in completing arrangements for the conference.

Because of the size of Rushville, there was some trepidation in the hearts of most of the members of the St. Paul church a year ago when they learned that the conference would be here this year, and said trepidation was not abated until the conference was well under way last week and everything was running smoothly. The people of Rushville were most liberal in opening their homes to the visitors, and the excellent brand of hospitality which Rushville serves on occasions such as this was the source of much comment.

Churches knew no lines in offering assistance. Members of all congregations took the visiting ministers in to their homes. Last Sunday it was

LEAVE HOTEL BY SIDE WINDOW

Two Young Men From Indianapolis
Also Forget About Owing Sixteen Dollar Board Bill.

POLICE WORKING ON CASE

Takes Early Morning Train Out of City—At Scanlan House Since Saturday.

The police are looking for two smooth young men who took "dutch leave" of the Scanlan House between 12 and 1 o'clock last night leaving behind an unpaid board bill amounting to about sixteen dollars. If caught they are promised a little free board at the expense of the county.

The boys registered under the names of C. J. Williams and R. F. Greely, and according to friends here these are their right names. Their homes are in Indianapolis but they registered from Montreal, Canada. The Indianapolis police department has been notified and the police here hope to have them returned here soon. One of the boys is easily distinguished as he had a scar on his face.

The two came here last Saturday and were decidedly "men of leisure" as they did nothing and apparently had plenty of money. Besides the board bill one of the two borrowed a dollar from Pearl Wamsley, proprietor of the Scanlan House. The boys occupied a room on the ground floor and last night they quietly slipped out, via the side window. The screen was removed and the two made their get away. It is believed by the police that they caught the early morning train for Indianapolis. The train was over an hour late and the agent remembered seeing one of the boys. He did not sell any tickets for this train and it is supposed that they beat their way to Indianapolis.

The police here are determined to capture the two. That they had no money is shown by the fact that one "made" the landlord for a dollar. Because they happened to be acquainted with some friends in Indianapolis that were known to local boys they were taken in and entertained. As far as the police have been able to learn they did nothing unlawful while here except jump the hotel bill. Their escape was well planned as they first called the C. H. & D. and inquired about the train.

HERE IT IS ONCE AGAIN

No, Says Mr. Honan, Registration
Not Required in Most Cities.

Thomas M. Honan, attorney-general, has given an unofficial opinion, in which he asserts that there is nothing in the Indiana registration law to compel the registry of citizens of any town or city in the state for a municipal election, except citizens of cities of the first or second class. These classes include Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Ft. Wayne, South Bend and Evansville. In all other towns and cities of the state registration is unnecessary, according to Mr. Honan, when municipal elections are being held. Dozens of inquiries concerning registration at municipal elections have reached the state official.

This is not presented to discourage any one, but it is reported to be the truth. Special music will be given and every man attending will receive a carnation.

FOURTH ANNUAL SHOOT TOMORROW

Club Will Attract Many Professionals.

SEVERAL EXPECTED TO COME

The fourth annual shoot of the Rushville Gun and Country club will be held at the gun club grounds at the northeastern edge of the city tomorrow, beginning in the morning and continuing throughout the day.

In addition to the many marksmen of note who live in this vicinity, there will be in attendance at the shoot professionals from Chicago, Dayton, Indianapolis and a number of other large centers. The shoots of the Rushville club in the last few years have attracted many professionals who have brought down good scores, and there is every reason to believe that records will be in jeopardy tomorrow.

The visitors were expected to begin coming in tonight.

Hits Low Mark in Rush County This Morning, But Sun Brings Mercury up.

The first frost of the season fell last night, but it did very little damage except to put an end to the tomato crop, which, packers hoped would last for some time yet.

The mercury dropped to the freezing point here this morning, but the sun brought it back up rapidly. There were several instances where water froze, it is reported.

The frost was general throughout the state, ranging from light in the south to killing in the north, with heavy frosts prevalent in the middle part. To a large extent the frosts were local and varied in severity according to geographic conditions. The skies cleared yesterday evening under the influence of the eastward movement of the high air pressure area, and prepared the way for the frost.

In this vicinity the frost was heavy. There were killing frosts at Ft. Wayne and Cambridge City, and light frost in Evansville and Terre Haute. No qualification was made of the brand at Farmland, French Lick, Lafayette, Marion and Auburn.

The mean average low temperature for the state for the twenty-four hours preceding 7 o'clock this morning was 35. Auburn had a temperature of 28 and Marion 31. In Indianapolis the lowest point reached was 37, between 5 and 6 o'clock. The sun came out bright and the atmosphere began to get warmer immediately, reaching a maximum of 68 during the day.

The Short Cut to Market

Railroads spend millions yearly straightening curves and making short cuts.

It pays in net earnings.

National manufacturers can shorten the curves between them and the local market by appealing through the best medium to reach the market—the daily newspaper.

The merchants of this town will tell you that their advertising in daily newspapers like The Daily Republican bring direct returns day by day.

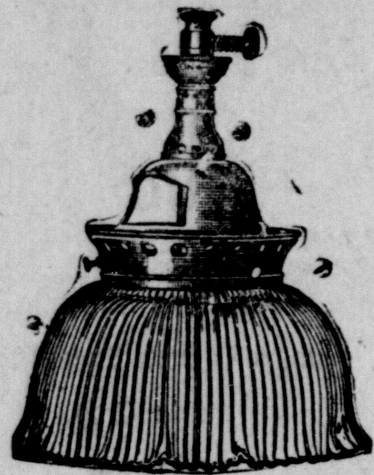

Newspaper advertising is an intimate daily part of the people's lives. It reaches them when they are in the mood for buying.

The modern short cut to market for a nationally advertised product is through a co-operative campaign in the daily newspapers between merchant and manufacturer.

FATHER SCHMIDT NOT AN IMPOSTOR

Murderous Priest's Identity Established.

RECOGNIZED BY OLD FRIEND

Fellow Priest Who Was a Student With New York Murderer in Their College Days in Germany, Calls at Tombs and Effectually Dashes Suspicion That Bloody-Handed Curate Was Sailing Under False Colors.

New York, Sept. 23.—The murderer of Anna Aumuller, the rectory maid, Hans Schmidt, was a priest and not a layman, who, for his own purposes, as many suspected, got possession of the credentials of a dead priest and masqueraded as one with the idea in view of having a cloak for his crimes.

This fact was established at the Tombs by the Father Francis Markeret, a professor in the college of Technology, Ill., who identified Schmidt as a boyhood friend and fellow student at Mainz, Germany, and the Hans Schmidt who went out into the world as an ordained priest.

Father Markeret came from Techy at the request of Father Luke J. Evers, the Catholic chaplain at the Tombs, who has said that he could not believe that Schmidt the prisoner was Schmidt the priest until someone who really knew the latter was able to identify him beyond any possibility of doubt.

"How do you do, Hans?" was Father Markeret's greeting in German. "You know me, do you not?"

"Yes," replied Schmidt, "you're Francis. Wie gehts?"

Later Father Markeret told of his boyhood acquaintance with Schmidt. He said that as a boy Schmidt was very pious, but when he got to be about twenty years old he began to show a worldly disposition. The last two years of his studies he was at Schlettstadt. "I think he was in college until 1899 or 1900," said Father Markeret. "After finishing his studies at Schlettstadt, he entered the seminary at Mainz, where he remained two years. Then he got permission of the bishop of Mainz to study at Munich. Later he sent me a copy of a paper which stated that he had been graduated as a doctor of philosophy. He returned to the seminary at Mainz and was ordained on Christmas, 1906 or 1907.

REBELS DYNAMITE A TRAIN

Scores of Passengers Killed When Mine Was Exploded.

Mexico City, Sept. 23.—Rebels dynamited a passenger train with a military force aboard, between San Luis Potosi and Saltillo. The train was from Mexico City and consisted of several first and second class coaches and Pullmans. The rebels placed an electric mine under the track, allowing the engine and baggage car to pass, and then exploded the mine under the second class cars carrying the soldiers and the poor passengers. The effect was terrific. Two second class cars were reduced to kindling wood. The engine and all other cars were derailed. More than thirty of the poorer passengers were killed and also many of the soldiers. In the fight which followed the rebels finally retired, leaving the survivors marooned. A relief train from Saltillo picked up the survivors.

ESSAD PASHA

New King of Albania Giving Cause For Alarm in Europe.

EUROPE IS ALARMED OVER THE SITUATION

Trouble In the Balkans Just Will Not Down.

London, Sept. 23.—The situation in Albania is causing renewed anxiety. It is impossible to receive an unbiased statement of what is happening, as all the news comes from interested sources to Vienna, where it is further contaminated by the Austrian prejudice.

"Complete anarchy" is one version of the situation in Albania at present. Another report has it that Essad Pasha, the former Turkish commander at Scutari, who was reported to have been killed a number of times, but who is now minister of finance under Ismail Kaemel, has proclaimed himself governor general, and that Moufid Bey, the foreign minister under the provisional government, is mustering an army to fight him. It was only a few days ago that it was reported Essad Pasha had fled to Durazzo, on the coast, and that he had taken all the money in the treasury with him.

If the trouble could be confined to the new province Europe might regard it calmly, but the worst aspect of the situation is the part which Serbia is reported to be playing. This is creating the fear that she may repudiate her pledges under the treaty of London and attempt to extend her territory. Fighting on the frontier between Serbia and Albania is said to be increasing in its scope and intensity.

Serbia's bitter disappointment at being shut off from the Adriatic by autonomous Albania and the Albanian determination to resist their Serbization seem to be the main factors in the trouble which for this reason is far from being welcomed by Austria. The Greeks, too, seem to be getting into the Albanian mess by increasing the agitation for the incorporation of the Koritza district of Albania in the kingdom of Greece. They have seized the American mission schools there, where about 100 Albanian girls are receiving instruction. The British consul at Monastir has protested vigorously to the Greek government on behalf of the Americans.

Peace between Turkey and Bulgaria has not yet been concluded.

BUT ONE VOTE IN SULZER'S FAVOR

High Court Says Impeachment Must Proceed.

ASSEMBLY'S RIGHT UPHELD

By a Vote of 51 to 1, High Court of Impeachment Denies the Contention of the Defense That Impeachment Was Defective Because Such Action Was Not Called For in the Call For the Extraordinary Session of Assembly.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 23.—William H. Sulzer must stand trial. By a crushing vote of 51 to 1 the impeachment court swept away his constitutional contention that it has no right to try him because he did not ask the assembly to impeach him in extraordinary session.

The vote was taken in a closed session of the court at the end of two days' argument by Louis Marshall for the governor and Alton B. Parker and Edgar T. Brackett for the assembly impeachment managers. The only judge who voted "Yes" in this secret session on Mr. Marshall's motion to dismiss the case for lack of jurisdiction was Senator Wando, Democrat, of Buffalo, who remained faithful to Mr. Sulzer through thick and thin. The first witness for the prosecution will be called probably late this afternoon. The court will first hear the argument of the Sulzer lawyers that Articles 1, 2 and 6 of the impeachment articles should be struck out and ex-Senator Brackett's reply.

Now that this important preliminary engagement of the fight has been fought and lost by the governor, it is no secret that his counsel expected to lose. Governor Sulzer, his friends say, received the news quietly and seemed anxious to have the real trial begun.

LIMANS COLD AND HUNGRY

Natural Gas Supply Gives Out in Midst of Snow Storm.

Lima, O., Sept. 23.—Most of Lima went supperless to bed last night and found their way under the covers in the dark, too, as in the midst of a terrific snow storm yesterday afternoon the natural gas supply failed. The snow whirled through the city at a forty-mile gait. Fully an inch of snow fell, breaking all records for early snowfall in this section.

Poured Out the Booze.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 23.—As a result of "blind tiger" raids, more than a thousand pints of beer was poured into the gutter by Sheriff Jones, by order from circuit court. It was necessary to get rid of the beer to make room for additional confiscated goods from "blind tigers." There is yet hundreds of dollars worth of liquor in the jail cellar.

Boy Dragged on Brick Street.

Bedford, Ind., Sept. 23.—Benjamin Dixon, aged seventeen, was probably fatally injured when a runaway horse hitched to a dray ran into a bicycle ridden by the boy, throwing the machine and boy to the brick street and dragging the boy nearly a square.

Vernon Keeps County Seat.

Vernon, Ind., Sept. 23.—Under a special act of the recent legislature the voters of Jennings county held an election yesterday to act on the proposition to move the courthouse from this city to North Vernon. By a large majority the proposition was lost.

Feud Fight May End in Death.

Sellersburg, Ind., Sept. 23.—A feud of about two years' standing came to a climax when trouble was renewed between Vol Helbig, a blacksmith, and George Hostetter, both married. Helbig stabbed Hostetter twice. The latter's condition is considered serious.

The Returning

"Whither so fast, ye anxious ones?
Whither so fast, I say?
Your haste is such it hath the look
Of one who is running away.
Why from the land of the incas' gold
Do ye hurry thus to roam?"
And the answer comes in a shriek, a shriek,
"Because we want to get home!"
"Why do ye crowd the sailing ships,
Ye panting refugees?
Why do ye flock to the border line
Each hurry way to seize?
Why without baggage do some come,
As though sent by a scare?"
"Because we'd get out of Mexico,
For it is not healthy there."
"Why do ye e'en to the steerage go
So that ye get across?
Why do ye fortunes leave behind
For the hand of fate to toss?
Why stay ye not and stick it out
And hang on to the bat?"
"Because we would fain be in a land Where we know where we are at."

MAKE MONKEYS HUMAN. PLAN OF SCIENCE FARM.

Simians Will Be Imported From Africa to Canary Islands.

Monkey politicians and orators and simian prima donnas may be a common thing in the course of a few years if an experiment to be made by scientists proves successful.

According to the Journal of the American Medical association, scientists who have struggled for years to prove or disprove the Darwinian theory and incidentally have worked out medical problems and cures with the aid of monkeys are now planning to establish a monkey farm on the Canary Islands, where the simians may be more closely studied.

Fear that in a few years the monkeys will be almost extinct has caused the movement for the experimental station. Science and medicine would sustain a severe loss if such a state of affairs should exist, says the Journal. The primates are to be transported from Africa and allowed to live in their natural state. A study will be made of their language and their ability to learn to talk, gesture and sing. They will be taught color perception, and the influence of certain colors upon the nerves of the monkeys will be studied and an attempt made to apply the same tests to human beings.

One of the main studies will be the hypothesis of a double origin of man, the belief universal among savages being that anthropoids living in the trees of their front yards are not brutes, but men like themselves.

The propagation of the simian is an important factor in the study of medicine and the discovery of serums and cures for human ills. Numerous tests have proved, says the Journal, that diseases which are prevalent in mankind exist also in monkeys, and the simian will react to the test practically the same as man.

As an example it was a monkey who first taught that bovine tuberculosis could be transmitted to human beings, although not as easily as in monkeys. Four species of simians will be taken to the Canary islands, the gorilla, chimpanzee, orang outang and gibbon, as these have proved to have more human traits than other anthropoids.

America's Daring.

Following the recent disasters on the New Haven and Pennsylvania systems, there is a movement for Congressional action on the question of railroad wrecks. Evidently expecting that Congress will do something eleven companies telegraphed the commerce committee Sept. 9 asking a full investigation before action.

Whatever defects exist in railroad equipment and there are plenty of them, the question of safer operating methods is one that needs most earnest consideration. There is a national habit of taking chances, for which the American people pay dear.

Readers of the French novelist Jules Verne will recall his satirical road operation, given in "Around the world in 80 Days." It will be remembered that Phileas Fogg, while journeying across this country, came to a dangerous railroad bridge. Some of the piers had been partly washed away. The timbers sagged visibly.

The passengers got out and examined the structure. One conservative passenger said there were 50 chances in 100 that they could get across alive. Others created enthusiasm by saying that that was too low, that there were 80 or even 90 chances in 100 that they could cross in safety.

As this seemed perfectly satisfactory, the passengers unanimously asked the conductor to proceed. Nothing loth, he pushed the train over the trembling structure, the passengers unconcernedly returning to their card games. Just as the last car left the trestle the bridge fell.

A fanciful picture of the national temperament, to be sure. But in view of the constant wrecks on American roads, is it wholly exaggerated?

A recent writer in the Railroad Gazette truly remarks: "It impresses the thoughtful passenger as ridiculous, to constantly watch trainmen to see that their boots are blacked and their faces shaved, but at the same time to take no measures to see that men charged with the safety of passengers are not daily disobeying vital orders."

"A MESSAGE FOR YOU."

"A Message For You" is the title of a new book by William Telfer of Bloomington, a member of the Indiana Methodist conference who is remaining here a few days after the close of the conference. The book is of good print and contains 319 pages. This sale now is on the second edition, the first one having been sold in a year. In one case an agent with a pastor canvassed thirty-two homes and sold twenty-nine copies. The book is advised to place in the homes to counterbalance. Each chapter is a message on everyday, vital subjects such as the following: "To Men of Wealth, Poor Men, Men of Fifty, Young People, Popular Amusements, The Enemy of the Home, The Saloon, The Tobacco Question, Worldliness in the Church, The Need of the Holy Spirit and A Thorn in the Flesh."

the Paoli team and is the wonder of the section of the state where his fame has spread. The Rev. Mr. Haley pitches for the team through the week, and offering his services, he gains the consent of the other players not to play Sunday. In this way he prevents the desecration of the Sabbath.

Many funny things happened during the conference which could hardly be chronicled because of the rush of the business sessions and the afternoon and evening programs. Some of them are recalled.

The Rev. J. T. Bean, pastor of the Simpson church in Evansville, and the Rev. R. N. Fish, pastor of the church at Clay City, were guests at dinner Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Betker. Because Bishop Anderson preached so late at the Sunday morning service, the minister did not arrive until twenty minutes to two and dinner had been ready since noon. It is not altogether, improbable, that, had Mr. and Mrs. Betker known they were going to have "Fish" for dinner, they would have expected a late dinner.

"If I had only known what the ministers' names were," said Dora Betker yesterday, "we would have had a lot of sport. As it was we had beans for dinner and passed them often, placing special emphasis on mention of the name. If I had been acquainted with the gentlemen, I would have had fish too, even if they would have had to have been sardines. And then we would have said: 'Mr. Fish, have some beans' and 'Mr. Bean, have some fish.'"

The conference requires that the board of examiners shall make a very complete investigation into the life history of every candidate for admission on trial to the conference, and the answers to these questions are some times bordering on the humorous.

In one instance the answers were that the candidate had been a Christian five years and a Methodist fifteen years. The life history of the very next applicant showed that he had been a Christian eight months and a Methodist eighteen years.

"It seems that something has come over the Methodists in Indiana," Bishop Anderson was moved to observe, "They have been converting lots of them."

Dr. Lathrope, age eighty-eight years, of Greensburg, who is the oldest minister in the conference, talked a few moments last Saturday morning. This fact was related to Bishop Anderson and he recalled an incident when he was presiding at a colored conference in Mississippi a few months ago. The supernumary and retired lists were read. The bishop held the record. He came to one minister in the supernumary list who was marked superlative. He said he presumed this was the relation Dr. Lathrope had with the conference.

ARE FROM SOUTHERN INDIANA

Dr. Will Shimer, superintendent of the pathological laboratories of the state board of health, has completed an examination of twelve cultures, supposed to have been taken from victims of "hook worm" in Indiana. In none was the presence of the disease detected, according to the state official.

Kentucky health authorities have made the statement that Indiana, particularly in the southern countries, has many cases of hookworm. At the coming meeting of the Indiana State Medical association at West Baden, September 25-26, Dr. Lydia South, bacteriologist of the Kentucky state board, has offered to prove that the "hook worm" exists in from cases throughout the southern Indiana, if provided with cultures.

Dr. Shimer has written approximately two hundred letters to physicians of the state found there were a number of special guests here for the day only and a hurry up call for help was sent out, to which the people responded nobly. The other churches were thrown open for use by the conference at any time of the day or night. The home of James E. Watson was used by the bishop and his cabinet for the meetings.

It is generally conceded that the annual session of the conference was a big undertaking for a city of the size of Rushville, but that Rushville was well paid for the efforts extended. It is pointed out that many ministers were in Rushville who perhaps did not know the city existed, and while here Rushville did its very best to make a good reputation for itself. Since the ministers were among the leaders in their respective communities, it is declared that a favorable impression of Rushville gained during the conference will cause them to speak a favorable word for the city.

"Besides all of the material things," said a well known man yesterday evening, "if the conference did nothing else for Rushville, it should have lifted the moral and spiritual plane. Rushville never before had opportunity to hear as many fine sermons, and the people took advantage of the opportunity, too. The conference program was equal to lots of chautauquas."

It is the case that it was generally agreed among the ministers that the program was the best the conference had had in many years. In fact, in private to their ministerial friends, many of the conference visitors admitted that not within their remembrance had there been such a strong program at any Indiana conference. This is agreed to be excellent testimony as to the worth and industry of the committee which had that in charge.

with the sword and with everything else. Now go!"

He turned and staggered away and that was the last I saw of him. I heard later that he had the devil's own time explaining those marks. He proclaimed that they had been inflicted by a madman, which was nearly the truth,
but in some way the story leaked out,
and I should judge that my vengeance
for the insult to my lady was as adequate as anything could be.

"I am come to take you to the ship,"
I said to her. "We must get there tonight to sail with the beginning of the ebb tomorrow morning."

"I am ready," she said, putting her hand upon my arm.

We went into the house and from there to the coach, with her maid and her baggage, after making her farewell to her kind hostess. In the evening we got aboard the ship, where I saw her safely bestowed in the comfortable cabin I had arranged for her and for her woman. When day broke and she came on deck we were under way for the Island of the Stairs. The great adventure had begun.

I pass over the events of the next six months, but not because they were uninteresting. Oh, no. One could not sail from Plymouth, England, to the south seas, touching at Madeira, the Canaries, Rio and Buenos Aires, and rounding the mighty and fearsome Cape Horn, without seeing many things of interest and participating in scenes as dangerous as they were exciting. But I am not writing a book of travels.

We were drawing near to the island
we sought, according to the calculations of good Captain Matthews and myself, when something happened.

I had brought it on myself I realized,
but that made it no more bearable.
Indeed, I was mad, mad all through;
outraged in dignity, humiliated in self respect, and were it not foolish to speak so of a man of my years and sturdiness I should say I was broken in heart.

My mistress had been so kind to me that I had dwelt in a fool's paradise.
I awoke to realize that she had not forgotten the difference between our stations. I had forgotten it in these long months at sea. By heavens, the sight of her was enough to make a man forget anything if he loved her as I!

There! The secret is out, but I make no doubt you guessed it long before.
But she had not. There was no mirror in the cabin, but I could well guess that the sight of me was not sufficiently prepossessing to make any woman forget. Yet she had been so kind. I was her only confidant or companion in the ship. I had forgotten. I had endeavored to leap the gap. I had fondly hoped that the one thing in me that was truly great—my passion for her—would land me safely by her side.

I did not see how she could fail to comprehend it, though I did try to disguise it.

Well, that love of mine, it had not brought her nearer. On the contrary, it had put me under lock and key.
And here I was, shut up like a criminal
in my own cabin in her ship, or mine, for that matter. Come to think of it, that moment I believe love had completely disappeared. I could recall —and can to this day, for that matter—
the fierce, burning rush of color to her cheek where I had kissed it; the fire of rage and surprise mingled which sparkled in her eyes. The Duke of Arcester I had marked for life for less than this. I recalled in shame. I hardly recollected the fierce blow of her hand upon my face. That was nothing. But I was undone. All the patient devotion of years, all the restraint of the long voyage, had come to naught.

There was plenty of bright starlight on deck. She had stepped out from the dark shadow of the spencer, and I had followed on her heels. The first night watch had not yet been called,
and the men, idled about the decks
waiting the boatswain's shrill whistle, had noted it all. I can see their sneering, laughing faces even now.

As it was, I drew myself up and waited while she sent for good old Captain Matthews and, vouchsafing no explanations, imperiously bade him stow me below as a prisoner in my cabin. He didn't relish the job, but went about it forthwith. Indeed, I did not wait for further orders after her look and glance. I stalked below as haughtily as you please. It was her ship, as she had said and as she certainly believed, and had it not been,
who could deny her anything? Not I, forsooth. I could steal a kiss, but not balk her will. And here I was the mate of the Rose of Devon, and but for my own renunciation I had been her captain, engaged in this wild goose chase, this foolish search for treasure, for so it seemed to me then,
locked up below like any mutinous dog at the behest of a woman that I could have broken between my thumb and finger. And after all I had done and sacrificed for her too.

Come to think of it, I had always loved her, ever since those days when I, the gardener's boy, had been her faithful and devoted slave. And through the long years when I had been far voyaging in distant seas I had kept her memory fresh and sweet and true. Although I had been in many rough places I had seen life from the seamy side, and the common lot of a sailor of my day had been mine.

There are no better seamen in narrow seas or broad than I. I had worked my way up through the fore-castle to the quarterdeck. I had a natural gift for figures. I could take a sight and work out a position as well as any book taught navigator, and I had been a great reader too. My private cabin was ever crowded with books. Much of my earnings were spent that way.
I had wit enough to choose good books,
too, and perseverance enough to study
them well.

I knew more than she—oh, much more!—about everything but the usages of good society, and I had at least learned something of good manners in her company since her father's death. My shipmates used to laugh at me for being a book deliver—a worm, they were wont to call it. Well, they didn't laugh very long. There was nothing physical for which I need stand aside for any man. I was over six feet high and built in proportion.
I could, unaided and alone, hold the wheel of the best ship in the fiercest storm.

CHAPTER VI.

Wherein My Lady is Placed in Great Peril.

NOW I was a prisoner. I said I didn't feel that blow on the cheek, but as I thought on it it fairly scared me. I hated her. I hoped that—no, I might as well be honest with myself. I didn't care how she treated me, how disdainful were her words, how unjustly she punished me, I loved her. I couldn't help.

I didn't want to help it. I would kiss the deck plank she bellowed with her footsteps.

There was another side to my confinement, and I presently took thought on that. I swear that I was not thinking of myself, but of her. I was ever thinking of her. I could see dangers that beset her as perhaps no one else could,
and my confinement added to her peril.
She didn't realize that; nobody aft on the ship realized it. There was a peril, imminent, menacing, about to break, I feared.

You see, the fact that we were treasure hunting had got about. I had not thought much of the crew, including the villainous looking boatswain, Pimball. We had shipped a lot of smart seamen, about the average in quality and above the average in smartness. I decided as the days had passed with nothing happening, but Pimball had signed some I could wish had been left ashore.

Her presence on the ship, too, was a mystery. Alone in the little Rose of Devon with thirty men. By evil mischance the maid she had brought with her had died after a brief illness two weeks out. Captain Matthews and I were for turning back, but she said no.
She would go on. We had lost too much time already and her all was embarked. We were now plowing the blue waters of the Pacific, and I, mate
of the ship and the only other officer
to be trusted, looked up!

We were nearing the latitude and longitude of the island. Suppose the men rose in mutiny! I ground my teeth in rage. The men liked me well enough, and I had been particular to keep them in good humor, passing over many a thing for her sake that I would have followed with a blow had she not been there. Captain Matthews had complained once or twice of my laxity, but I knew things that he didn't,
and I had done what I deemed best for her. I pledge you my word that I didn't care a farthing for the treasure. I had never given it much thought. I grew to believe in it less and less as we got further from home,
and if I had been stronger for my duty and weaker in my love I would have dissuaded her from the voyage, following Master Ficklin's lead.

Now, that she was poor and alone,
neglected and forgotten, I had enjoyed a foolish dream that I could be a companion to her—a life shipmate—for the captain was a rough, plain old sailor. What a fool I was! And yet it had worked in some way as I had intended. We had been thrown into closer intimacy by the loneliness of her position and my faithful and, until that night, most unobtrusive, self effacing devotion.

I suppose it never entered her head
that I could presume to love her, consequently she was less careful than she had been otherwise, and that very night when I had poured out my declaration to her she had had no words with which to meet it. I thought her silence was consent. I see now that it was amazement. I seized her in my arms like the brute she must have thought me, lifted her up and kissed her fair on the lips and then on her averted cheek. Arcester, the blackguard, could have done no worse. I will never forget how she stigmatized me—"brute, coward, low born." I don't believe she had rallied at that seconddred duke so fiercely.

Well, I didn't care what she had called me. Her safety, her life, her honor demanded that I be released.
That was the paramount concern.

I listened. I thought I heard a foot-fall in the outer cabin. Could she be there? I suppose that I had been locked up for perhaps an hour. Aye, on the instant the bell forward struck three. We kept man-of-war customs at her fancy. The sound came to me faintly as I listened. Half past 9.
She could not have gone to her berth
yet. She must be there in the great cabin. I ventured to call.

What it cost me any man can imagine—and to humble myself to ask her mercy too. I am a man of fierce temper, as you have deemed, but I can control it on occasion, and I did it now. I shook the door of the cabin gently at first and then vigorously and called once and again. There was no answer. I beat upon it. I raised my voice. I scarcely thought I could be heard on deck. The wind was blowing, the sea was heavy, and the ship was pitching wildly. The straining, the creaking, the groaning of the timbers would have prevented such a noise as I made from attracting attention unless some one were in the cabin.

But all in vain. No heed was paid to me, and yet I could swear that somebody was there. I don't know how exactly, but I was conscious of her presence. Perhaps because I was so in love with her that I could always tell whether she was about. I can to this day.

It made me madder than before to go thus unheeded. I was on the point of giving over my endeavor, but I thought of the peril in which she stood.

WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

NECK BROKEN IN PURDUE "SCRAP"

Result of Post Mortem In Victim's Case.

FIRST OPINION ERRONEOUS

When Frank Obenchain, a South Whitley Youth, Was Found Dead During the Progress of the Annual "Tank Scrap" at Purdue It Was Given Out That He Died of Heart Disease, but Examination Shows Differently.

Columbia City, Ind., Sept. 23.—A post mortem examination on the body of Frank Obenchain, the South Whitley youth who was killed in the Purdue "tank scrap" Friday night, showed that death had been caused by a dislocation and fracture of the first cervical vertebra, which almost severed the spinal cord. Six doctors were present at the examination, three being from Fort Wayne and three from South Whitley, and they have all signed a sworn statement to the above facts.

The funeral of the young man was held this afternoon. The pall bearers were college mates of the deceased from Purdue and all from his fraternity, the Phi Kappa Sigma. One of them is the young man who carried Obenchain from the scrimmage after he was hurt and who was the first to discover his death.

When Obenchain's death was discovered it was at first said that it was due to choking, as he was said to have a goitre and his neck was swollen under a heavy leather and iron collar that he wore in the scrimmage.

An hour later the coroner of Tippecanoe county held an external examination and gave out a statement that death was due to heart disease and had occurred before the actual "scrap" began on the field. This was not satisfactory to the father of the youth and the examination was held in accordance with his wishes.

MERCHANT SLAIN IN HOTEL

Lured to Room Under Pretense of Showing Samples.

Indianapolis, Sept. 23.—With a strong cord twisted around his neck and a wound in his head, Joseph Schlansky, a clothing merchant, 439 East Washington street, was found dead last night in a room at the Oneida hotel, which a young man registering as W. R. Anderson, Louisville, Ky., had occupied. The police are looking for Anderson.

The murdered man was lying in a pool of blood, and death is believed to have been caused by the wound in his head, evidently caused by a heavy blow with some sharp instrument.

Schlansky had been missing since shortly after noon, when he departed from his store with a young man who called and said that he had some goods in a downtown room he wished to show him. When he left home Schlansky had $20 in money and also carried a watch worth $8 and a chain worth $12. These were gone when his body was found.

On the floor near the body were several pieces of paper on which morbid sentences had been written. One of them said: "Started to take his money. Killed him—Laury Anderson."

RESPECT FOR A MAN OF GENIUS AND HEART

Gaynor's Funeral An Event In Gotham's History.

New York, Sept. 23.—One of the great events of this city's history was the funeral of Mayor Gaynor. It emphasized more majestically, if less appealingly, that the public mourning of Sunday, the respect of not merely the city, but of the state and the nation for a man of genius and heart.

In times past there may have been equally impressive funerals for men of great works and abundant goodness, but there was never a funeral where the expression of respect was more general, more significant of a whole people's real feeling.

For there appeared to pay last honors to Mayor Gaynor men of great station and men of lowly place; men who had been his bucklers and good friends and men who had mischief on their lips. They who had fought with him and received his praise and they who had fought against him and had felt the sting of his anger and wit, walked together, offering equal respect, united in honoring the memory of one who had shown his powers to a generation.

In all likelihood there were never such masses solidified in lower Manhattan.

Delayed Campaign Opened.

New York, Sept. 23.—The politicians who have been silent during the days of the city's mourning, started on their final preparations for the campaign. Leagues opened headquarters, meetings have been arranged, and the candidates are taking breath for their speeches.

"PRINCES' TRUST" IS IN HARD STRAIGHTS

Kaiser's Powerful Friend At End of His String.

Berlin, Sept. 23.—It has just been announced that Prince Maximilian Egon Zu Fuerstenberg, the intimate friend of the kaiser and head of the so-called princes' trust, has found it necessary to float a public loan of $5,500,000 and to mortgage the bulk of his great properties in the grand duchy of Baden as security.

The loan, which will bear 4½ per cent interest and will consist of what is known as "proprietor's obligations," will be offered for subscription on the bourses under special sanction of the grand duchy of Baden. Prince Fuerstenberg's partner in the trust is the kaiser's kinsman, Prince Christian Kraft Zu Hohen-Oehring. He also owns vast property. But, like Prince Fuerstenberg, he was for a long time without the necessary money to finance his various interests. The two princes pooled their interests about six or seven years ago on the plan of community of interests.

The misfortunes of the "princes' trust" have been known to the public for a long time. It started out modestly a few years ago, but gradually extended its operations until its investments represented a capital of some $70,000,000. When at the height of its power Germans began to get alarmed over its voraciousness. But troubles have come thick and fast and the collapse of the trust has been rumored for some time.

Parker of the United States geological survey, in co-operation with the geological survey of Kansas. The gain amounted to 13 per cent in quantity and 19.5 per cent in value.

More than 1,500 students in the two high schools of Syracuse, N. Y., have gone on strike in support of demands for shorter study hours, better food in school lunches and a continuation of the fraternity system.

FLATROCK HERE TOMORROW

Will Meet Methodists in Final Game
of Season.

The final game of the Sunday school league will be played tomorrow afternoon between the Flatrock and Methodist teams. This is the game that was to have been played last week but was called off on account of wet grounds. The Flatrock team has the pennant won and if the Methodists can win they will go into a tie with the other two teams for second place. Carr will probably pitch for the Methodists and will be opposed by Halterman for the Flatrock team. Owing to the weather the game will be called at three-thirty o'clock.

A LITTLE READY MONEY

MEANS much to the man or woman who must earn their own living. The need of it is always present: now and then it is needed very badly. Sickness or accident may stop your earnings for a while. You may want money to build a home, or to take advantage of a good investment. Opportunities often come to the man with ready money. It is the only sure protection against poverty or want.

HOW TO GET IT

By saving a little every month. It isn't what you earn, but what you save—which increases your fund of wealth. Strange as it may seem, it is the wage earners of this country who save the most money. The wage earner works hard for what he gets and he knows its value. As the years slip by, they bring around a time when his power to earn grows less and his need of money grows more. That time will surely come in the life of each one of us. Are you preparing for it by opening a SAVINGS ACCOUNT with to get it out of the way. Had it been allowed to remain on the track a few minutes longer it would have been killed by the train. Another was that the person leaving it on the track had been paid to do so.

POLICE HAVE REAL MYSTERY

The local C. H. & D. agent was in communication with the conductor of the train that the baby was supposed to have been taken out on, this afternoon and the conductor stated that he did not see anything of a stranger or of the baby and that if they were on the train he surely would have seen them. The conductor was at Oxford when he talked to the local agent.

The man taking the baby from Mrs. Richter was dressed very poorly for a brakeman, according to her. He resembled a hobo more than a brakeman and she is of the opinion that the man was not connected with the railroad. The police are at a loss as to why a hobo or a brakeman would want the child. According to Mrs. Richter the man caught the train as it was pulling out and took the child with him. Mrs. Richter believes that she would recognize the man should she see him again.

The nature of the crime is almost inconceivable and is hard to believe but Mrs. Richter tells a straight story and the police have no reason to doubt the truth of the story. It is a mystery and unless the train crew can throw some light on it, will remain one. The child was not seen by any of the people living along the track near the Arthur street crossing and its identity is absolutely unknown.

CRONIN'S CHURCH TO BE DEDICATED

Catholic Edifice of Which Former Rushville Man is Pastor to be Formerly Opened.

NEW RECTORY ALSO BUILT

The dedication of the new and beautiful St. Mary's Catholic church in Richmond, of which the Rev. Walter Cronin, formerly pastor of the Catholic church here, is now in charge, will take place early next month, probably the first Sunday, which falls on the fifth.

The services will be of special interest and importance to the Indianapolis diocese. The edifice, which is entirely of stone, of exceptionally imposing and beautiful architectural design, has been under construction for two years or more. The work was begun under the rectorship of the Rev. J. F. Mattingly and concluded under the Rev. W. J. Cronin, his successor as head of St. Mary's parish. The interior finishing, decorations and furnishings are of the handsomest design, and the edifice as a whole is regarded as one of the finest in Indiana. The church fronts in North A street, near Eighth, and to the east stands the rectory, also of imposing design.
